

ABSTRACT

A method for eliminating blooming streak of an acquired image is capable of eliminating blooming streaks in the acquired image photographing an object together with a light source by mutually replacing the blooming streaks in the acquired image with a partial image corresponding to the blooming streaks from other acquired image, wherein 5 each image is acquired by cameras with changing the arrangement direction of the CCD sensors of the cameras.